

Dear Innovative Teacher:

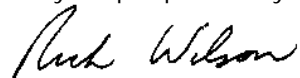

Embark on a live, interdisciplinary learning adventure! With sites ALIVE![™], you'll link your classroom to student researchers in the last remaining rainforest of Australia, or in the vibrant coral reefs of the Caribbean, or on the tall ship Concordia sailing around the world!

Join thousands of educators in grades three through nine who have successfully integrated this fascinating and unique approach to teaching into their curricula. As these educators have discovered, sites ALIVE![™]:

- Provides exciting content that stimulates students' interest
- Brings interactive learning to your classroom
- Creates a real and personal link to students living out adventures around the world
- Motivates students and parents with home-school connections
- Illustrates how math, science, language arts, and social studies apply to real world situations

Sign up today! Your class will experience and learn from the wonder and discovery shared by student researchers as they live out learning adventures in Australia, the Caribbean, or at ports-of-call around the globe.

Get your passport ready!

"It is a fantastic way to expose children to different cultures. The program (Class Afloat) pulls everything together...science, math, history, computers, and geography."

*Sandra Regenscheid
4th Grade Teacher, Staten Island, NY*

"...a great motivational tool — students really get involved in following the journey!"

*Marsha McCann
6th Grade Teacher, Hamilton, IN*

"One of the most rewarding programs that I have ever used in my classroom."

*Mary Ann Ray
5-8th Grade Teacher, Rockville, CT*

"It's one program that we're doing in school that is really happening instead of just pretending."

*7th Grade Student
Merion, PA*

"Students can identify with others their own age...an excellent way to discuss current events."

*Jim J. Walker
7-12th Grade Teacher, San Francisco, CA*

"...a wonderful interdisciplinary program!"

*JoAnn Hauser
6th Grade Teacher, Overland Park, KS*
